

Charles Henry Fiori

June 14, 1958 - August 6, 2018

Charles H. Fiori, 60, of Bonita Springs, passed away on Monday, August 6th after a brief battle with cancer. Born to European parents, Charles was a life-long New Yorker, despite time spent in Illinois, New Jersey and now Florida. He earned both his Bachelor's and MBA from Columbia University, and held many positions throughout the business world. His skills also translated well to his personal life, and he wrote many freelance articles on the subject of big data.

Outside of the professional world, he could often be spotted wearing blue and orange, whether it was supporting the Mets, the Islanders, or the Florida Gators. The only exceptions to this rule would be if he was sporting blue and white or purple and black, in honor of the alma maters of his children. And, of course, it wouldn't be a true trip to the stadium without an adventure on the subway, bus or plane! His love of sports and transportation was only surpassed by his love of people. No person was a stranger, especially when introduced over a nice glass of red.

He is survived by his two children, Lauren and Bryan, as well as his long-term partner and recent bride, Jacqueline. A Mass will be celebrated in Charles' honor at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City and will be announced at a later date.
