“ Shared many a message and phone call with Deborah. I will miss her and her great energy. She was a leader of the online Jaco Pastorius fan club community and showed great appreciation of his talent and of their friendship, which went back to when they both were kids. Rest in Peace in Havona, Jaco's musical paradise, Deborah!

“ I met Deb working together several years ago. What a shock. This will take awhile to register in my mind. We spoke on the phone probably a month ago or so. Usually caught up every so often. Very sweet lady. Always positive and warm and friendly. I'm very sad to see this news.

“ There are very few people whose smile can ignite the room and make an indelible mark on everyone present. There is a sense of genuine beauty that Deb owned and radiated. The news of her passing is hard to hear, but I know that Heaven is far more beautiful with her there. Peace and Joy in the wake of your gorgeous impact on the world, sweet friend.

“ I first met Deb when she was a Interior Designer at Ethan Allen in Naples, Florida, back in 2001. She was a very memorable, and outgoing woman to meet with a laugh you could never forget. A few months later she was employed at Norris Furniture & Design, were I too was employed. We soon became friends, with so much in common. Later I found out we were both born in May, a day apart. We were both born under the Taurus sign. I think that's why we just got each other. Four years later I accepted a manager's position, with a design firm in Orlando Florida. Moving away made our friendship stronger. Deb would come visit me in Orlando. Sometimes we would meet in other locations, and just enjoy each other's company. We spoke to each other once or twice a week, and we were constantly sending funny jokes or texting each other back and forth on messenger, just about every day. There is a piece of my heart missing now. I miss, and love you my beautiful friend.

“ I met Deborah on line not terribly long ago. It was on a Jaco site. We bonded through our love of him. She was instantly open and gracious with me before she had any good reason to be. We had some wonderfully intimate exchanges and I grew to love her quickly. I will never forget her. Love, Christopher Garcia

“ I have a number of great memories of doing fun, special things with Deb. I worked with her circa '86-96 and kept in touch for awhile. Then her mail was returned undeliverable! What then? A number of years went by and I poked the internet now and then to see where she went. Then FaceBook! And we connected again. Her Words With Friends game with me defaulted today. Very, very sad. RIP Deb.

“ Deborah will forever be in my heart and a part of my soul. Looking forward to the day we meet in Heavens meadows and dance together to the music of our hearts.
