Doris Dailey, age 87, went to be with Jesus in her heavenly home on January 24, 2021.

Doris was born in Sherman, NY, on January 14, 1934, to O.K. and Ferna Thurber. She grew up in Blockville, NY, and graduated from high school at the age of 16. She later attended Central Bible College in Missouri. As a young adult she moved to Albuquerque, New Mexico, where she married the love of her life, Art Dailey. Together they lived in Las Cruces, Roswell, Farmington, Kirtland, NM, and Gainesville, TX.

The last two years of her life, Doris enjoyed tropical southern Florida.

She is also survived by five grandchildren, Preston Jobe, Jesse Jobe, Jerry Elliott, Jason Elliott, Tori Elliott, three great-granddaughters, and one sister, Alta Stufflebeam. Doris was also preceded in death by her 'adopted' mother Grace Lloyd, sister Bonnie and brother Larry.

Doris loved God, her family, children, and the elderly. She expressed that love by serving and giving, often in the form of homemade treats from her kitchen. She devoted many years to developing and leading children's ministries in the churches she attended. Doris also loved music. She enjoyed singing and played the organ after she had a dream about it, and without any formal training. She and her husband traveled the country on numerous occasions. Doris was a homemaker, as well as the bookkeeper for her husband's auto parts store. Later, she was employed as a bookkeeper for several other businesses, including a team leader/trainer position at Thriftway Co. in northern New Mexico. She is cherished and missed by family and friends.

Interment will be with her husband in Gainesville, TX.
