

Howard Rossmore

July 31, 1920 - January 1, 2017

"Giving is a selfish act" was one of Howard Rossmore's signature sayings. So, in the spirit of this sentiment, it is fitting to acknowledge how "selfish" Howard was during his 96 years of embracing all that life had to offer. Howard gave that which was priceless: he gave his attention, his positivity, his insightful unique view of the world, and the immeasurable gift of acceptance. A native New Yorker, devout atheist, staunch hedonist, chocoholic, traveler, engineer, pool builder, small business owner, "To tell the truth constestant", champion Master's swimmer, devoted son, dad, grandfather - special person. Dad, Howard, Poppi, Friend to many - you will be greatly missed.

Tribute Wall

“ Howard Rossmoore

October 09, 2023 at 02:01 AM

“ Howard Rossmoore

January 28, 2023 at 12:09 PM

“ Howard was my favorite resident in my 2 years working as in occupational therapist in the nursing home. We would cook chocolate treats together and I had staff members tell us we should have a cooking show together. Even in his last year, he couldnt cook as well as he used to but he would still give me a sweet smile. Then I knew we still had a bond outside the therapy kitchen. He will be truly missed.

-Corinne

Corinne - January 18, 2017 at 09:16 PM

My father did have a taste for all things chocolate and an eye for attractive red heads! Corinne, thank you for your kindness.

Ed Rossmoore - January 25, 2017 at 10:15 AM