“ I love you with my all. I haven't stopped crying since I found out, literally... You were such a good person, boyfriend, friend, and we were like soulmates, we always said that... It hurts that things had to end like that, you were to young, but god had another purpose for you... It feels too soon, but yet I have to accept that God has better plans for you now .. like we were perfect for eachother, we had such big plans, both of our moms said we basically woke up and went to sleep on the phone together, theres So much I can say, but this is so hard.. I literally break down at the slightest reminder of you. It hurts so so so so bad.. And its hurts that some people don't understand how serious this is.. In ways this has brought my family closer to yours, your mom and you were so funny together.. I just remember going out to eat with your mom, Grandma, and your best friend for your birthday.. You just turned 17, uuuughhh.. We have billions of good memories. I have so much to say but ill say it in the hundreds of prayers I send you everyday, I'll love you #5eva
