“ To the Murdocks Its never easy to let a loved one go but memories are forever never let go of those memories and you'll always have that loved one near. Cry tears of joy that he is in a much better place with no more pain and suffering, preparing for the you'll meet again. Once again remember that this life is borrowed and that the lord has a plan that has already been written. Love and comfort one another. May the bring peace to each and everyone of you.

“ I would like to offer my condolences to Myrtle and my beautiful cousins and the rest of the family. I am sorry I am not able to be there in person, but I am there in spirit. It was a pleasure to have had the opportunity to have gotten to know him under such sad circumstances in July 2010. I love you all.
