

James Wayne Shattuck

September 9, 1938 - April 12, 2020

James Shattuck, 81, of North Port, FL, died April 12, 2020 at Sarasota Memorial Hospital. He was born September 9, 1938 to his parents Allen and Maryrose Shattuck in Westfield, MA. His life was well lived and he enjoyed every minute of it. He married his wife Ellen, they had 5 children, James, Joanne, John, Katherine and David. He was a proud Veteran and a longtime member of the IUOE Local 478. James enjoyed taking things apart with his sons and rebuilding them. Which goes to show his expertise as a welder came into good use while he was retired.

James is survived by his sons, James, John and David Shattuck, 11 grandchildren, 20 great grandchildren and sisters, Jean and Roseann. He is predeceased by his wife Ellen, daughters Joanne and Katherine Shattuck and sister Patty. He will be greatly missed by his family and friends.

“ Uncle Wayne taught me how to play chess, weld and laugh. His amazing, quirky, functional inventions always fascinated me. Unicycles, zip-guns, skateboards, go-carts, minibikes, potato cannons, extendable branch saws, etc, etc, etc. He was a quiet genius.

I will miss seeing him as he called me tuff guy.

A perfect example of American Ingenuity. He learned quickly at a young age during the Korean War while working in a machine shop on a battle ship in the navy.

I bragged about how I converted my bike to a unicycle but my uncle wayne straightened the forks, Inclosed the roller bearings I had. and fixed all my splattered welds. And he even held my hand as I started out on the unicycle as I headed down the driveway.

And after I split my lower lip and had to eat peas for 2 weeks. My mother told wayne not to come and see me because every time i laughed it would split open again. And of course, he tried to make me laugh. He was the Quintessential uncle
