

James Wilson

January 1, 1958 - August 12, 2010

Jim Wilson lived life as if there were no tomorrow. He loved motorcycles, boating, garage sales, ebay, traveling, and most of all, he loved his family and friends. Jim was full of mischief and was always open to new experiences and adventures. He lived most of his life in Indiana, but for the past 10 years he resided in Florida. In his youth, he lived in Nashville, TN, and the Pacific Northwest, particularly Portland, OR. An extrovert, Jim was always the life of any party, and he had a wide circle friends, cousins, and business associates in the Indianapolis area. He ultimately lost his 23-year battle with diabetes and its devastating side effects. While his suffering and pain this past year were immense, he always maintained a strong front, and not even those closest to him truly realized the scope of his illness. He embodied carpe diem and living life on his own terms.

“ I remember when I was younger Jim came by the house on Edgewood. No body was home but me. He took me for a ride on his motorcycle. When we came back he told me he would never take me for a ride again. I asked why he said "your so light I can't tell that you were back there. If I lost you your Dad would kill me." He always made me laugh. I will never forget that ride with my Uncle Jim.
