“ As many times as I wanted to smack you or throttle you I still loved you so much. Inwill miss your perverted gallows humor and just talking about books and movies. I am going to miss how you zombie shuffled through the kitchen or always calling us George. I love you so so much dad. Now I am sure you are trying to rule over wherever you are now or driving them up the wall. I miss you so much! 😭

“ I guess I am the oldest friend of the Dunivent family. I think my path first crossed with Jeff's when we were about six months old, in Chicago, and our paths have been crossing for 59 years. Growing up next door to each other, we shared so much. We shared lots of fun and laughter, but also family, grief, loss, marriage, death, children, and more loss. But the thing we never lost was our connection. I don't think death can end that.

Rest well, love, you have earned it. Until we meet again...

“ I got to meet Jeffery and Tina when they invited me to stay in their home while I visited Dani; he was so very kind and funny. I always smile when thinking about that trip, and my heart aches for Tina and Danielle because of this loss. May the gods watch over them until they are reunited once more.
