“ *I always remember Dad and Uncle Jack arguing over who's railroad job is more important, Engineer, Fireman or Conductor? I'm sure the battle will continue over there. They will never give up. That is one of the most valuable messages that was passed on to me, don't give up until the job is done. That message has carried me through some tough times. We love and miss them and all of our family who have passed over.
Lord, please hold them in the warmth of your hand until we meet again.*
