“ Words cannot express the deepest sympathy I have for you and your family. Someone taught me something thing after the loss of my Mother just 3 eyars ago. When people told me I would "get over the pain" it was not true. You must always make room for the pain because it will always be there at different levels at different times but to think we should be without pain of loosing a loved one would mean that we would have to forget them and we all know we never forget those loved ones that we have lost. Remember this always. All my prayers and support.
