“ I met Len when he began working in our department at Yale School of Medicine. Our friendship lasted longer than his position as an Animal Technician did. Len was an extremely interesting, intelligent man with a fantastic sense of humor. He made me laugh at a time that I had very little to smile about. I know that he had married, moved to Florida and divorced again, but I never heard anything else about his life. I can only hope that he finally found peace in his remaining years.
