“ When I was a toddler, I fell into the pool at a family gathering. Ray was the only one who saw it happen. I remember the feeling of slowly sinking toward the bottom of the deep end and a hand grabbing my shoulder and pulling me up and out. It was Ray. He never became a wealthy man, or attended a prestigious College. He was relegated to back row of our then large family. Because of him, I was afforded the opportunity to go on and do good things, some of them great. My Cousin Ray. That quiet guy in the corner that no one thought much of.

My Cousin Ray.

My Hero.
