“Renate, please accept my heartfelt condolences on the death of your husband. I once read something by Bishop Fulton Sheen that will hopefully help you in finding some peace. He said we usually think of hearts at Valentine's day when our kids make us those construction paper hearts by folding the sheet in half and cutting out a perfect heart. However, the human heart is not perfectly shaped. That is because before God sends us down to earth, he takes a piece of our heart to keep with him. It is only when we die and meet God again that he reattaches the missing piece of our heart and it is whole again. I will keep you and your family in my heart and prayers.”
